MRWA Training District 2—Le Center

Minnesota Rural Water Association held a Hand's On Water Treatment Training Session at the Le Center Water Treatment Facility on May 4, 2011.

The attendees were given the opportunity to learn real hands on training. The training session was limited to 20 attendees, the group was separated into 4 smaller groups, and each group was given a specific topic that they covered.

The group learned in depth laboratory procedures, including testing the water before and after filtration and aeration, blueprint reading, treatment plant design and layout. The operators in attendance were able to perform jar testing on the raw and treated water to obtain optimal results of the treated water. The group also reviewed each step of the treatment process and learned what its function was.

MRWA provides classroom and on-site training to water systems and governing personnel on the most up-to-date methods of efficient operations and management techniques. MRWA offers managements and specialized training to operators, managers, board members, decision makers, government personnel, administrators, and other interested personnel, with most classes being offered free of charge.
